

About the Residential Strata Facilities Management Division

The Residential Strata Facilities Management Division has been established by FMA to act a focal point for facilities management professionals who have a direct interest in the practice and management of residential, strata and some accommodation facilities. A group of individual FMA members became interested in the area of residential facilities management since the publication of the FMA Good Practice Guide in Residential Facilities Management.

The clear distinction of residential and strata facilities has facilitated the need for a division with the ability to focus on related issues and provide additional support to those members of the division, with the creation of the Residential Strata Facilities Management Strategy Group at the end of 2018. This group meets regularly with a view to growing residential and strata members within FMA and working on residential strata industry challenges while holding informative, educational, networking events throughout the year.

FMA Resi Strata Info Network Sessions

These sessions are afternoon information-based events focusing on topical issues presented by experienced industry speakers which include an hour of networking drinks. They run consecutively on the same topic in both Sydney and Melbourne 3 times per year with a view to spreading to other states in future.
